BY A. S. PEASE. The summer is passing away; The flowers are drooping and dying, The apple trees bend with their fruit; The elves in the corn are at play at a voice through the trellis is sighi The summer is passing away.

The summer is passing away; he birds have forsaken their young, The Robin still chirps near the door; The bobolink tarries his stay; But I hear only this in their song -The summer is passing away,

The summer is passing away

No perfume entirens the sense; The fragrance that flavors the breeze Is from the orchard, and viney ard, and hay; The chilling winds moon through the fen

The summer is passing away. The summer is passing away; The sunlight falls thin on the grass; The night dews are heavy and dark; The forest trees solemaly say, And the rivulets murmur, alas!— The summer is passing away.

The summer is passing away; And the thought to the senses is sad; But the orchards are burdened with fruit, And the elves in the corn are at play; And the heart of the reaper is glad That summer is passing away.

Life's summer is passing away; The visions of youthbood are fled; The senses are blunted by age; The raven locks turning to gray; The friends of our infancy dead -Life's summer is passing away.

Life's summer is passing away, Is whispered by heavenly voices; Hope, labor, and patience, and faith, Having toiled through the heat of the day. The soul of the Christian rejoices That life's summer passes away.

Hired Mourners.

All about London, says an English correspondent, you see advertised "cheap funerals." You can be shrouded, coffined, and buried with four mourners, for about twenty dollars. Of course these mourners don't know who you are, what you are, where you came from, or where you are going to, but they will mourn as if you were the last friend they had or expected to have on earth with a yard of black crape daugling and waving from their hats like so many pirates flags; and when you are covered up, they will adjourn to the nearest public house, and over their porter and cheese pray for some invelid, nor is it a doctored liquor which, under the popular name of "Bitters" is so extensively with cash enough to be mourned over.
